Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society

CEZ Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society 1846-1968

Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society 1880-1968, a missionary organisation that focused specifically on supporting and promoting the welfare of women and girls overseas. Comprising minutes of the General Committee 1880-1968, Executive Committee 1898-1957, Candidates Committee 1882-1957, Finance Committee 1881-1957, Home Organisation Committee 1896-1957 and other committees and sub-committees; rolls and registers of missionaries 1880-1957; correspondence and administrative papers of the Society's Secretaries; financial records; legal records; photographs of missionaries and officers; publications and printed materials (including periodicals, newsletters, printed leaflets and booklets, mission reports and books written by missionaries). The complete sequences of the Society's official journal and Annual Reports 1880-1957 provide a particularly helpful overview of the Society's work at home and overseas. The collection also includes copies of some earlier papers and publications pre-dating the Society's split from its predecessor organisation, including early deeds and issues of 'The Indian Female Evangelist' published by the Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society 1872-1880.

The archives have suffered badly from numerous changes of headquarters and also from severe flood damage during the Second World War. Correspondence with the missions overseas survives only from 1921. The loss can be partly compensated for by the use of printed reports, periodicals and other publications which made extensive use of information from original records including those that have not survived (although it should be noted that series of publications other than the Annual Reports and India's Women are largely incomplete).

The collection not only illustrates developments in mission work with women overseas but also serves as a source of information on the evolution of local Church movements.

PLEASE NOTE THAT THE MICROFILM COPIES OF THIS VERY POPULAR COLLECTION ARE SERVED IN PLACE OF ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS TO ENSURE THE LONG-TERM PRESERVATION OF THE RECORDS. PLEASE SEE 'COPIES' BELOW.

Administrative history: The Church of England Zenana

Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society

Missionary Society (CEZMS) was founded in 1880 when it separated from the interdenominational Indian Female Normal School Society founded 1852. 'Zenana' comes from the Persian word for woman; in India it refers both to the women's quarters in a Hindu home and has the more general meaning 'belonging to women'. The zenana was accessible only to women and the CEZMS was predominantly staffed and supported by women and girls, and worked through women missionaries (source: CEZ/G/EA 5F). Its main aim was to evangelise the women of India by means of normal schools [teacher training colleges], zenana visiting, medical missions, Hindu and Muslim female schools and the employment of Bible Women. From the start, CEZMS worked in close co-operation with the Church Missionary Society (CMS), for example, in deciding where to extend work overseas, sending missionaries to work in CMS mission areas and in sharing some candidates' facilities; the two Societies also shared local overseas secretaries and had a joint Women's Committee. In 1957 CEZMS amalgamated with CMS although a board of trustees continued to administer the transfer of property and trust funds until 1968.

The overseas work of the Society started in India but spread to China in 1884, Japan in 1886 and Ceylon in 1889. Work in China ended in 1950 when the missionaries had to leave, but from 1952 they worked amongst the Chinese in Malay. When the Society's work in Japan ceased in 1892 it was handed over to CMS. When the Female Education Society (founded 1843) closed down in 1900, CEZMS took over their work in Singapore, though the Singapore School Sub-Committee (Secretary 1904-1912 Lady Gage Brown; 1913 Miss E. Gage Brown) was not fully integrated until 1913. CEZMS missionaries began teaching in zenanas and day schools. The chief stations were Trivandrum, Palamcotta (Sarah Tucker College), Masulipatam and Madras in South India, Meerut (handed over to CMS 1893), Jabalpur, Calcutta (Normal School) and Amritsar (Alexandra School) in North India. Medical work was of great importance. The Society had taken over the work at Amritsar (St Catherine's Hospital) and other hospitals and dispensaries were established in Bhagalpur, Srinagar, Peshawar (Connaught Hospital), Batala, Narowal and Tarn Taran. Work was also done by 'village missions', a central village from which evangelists visited dozens of villages grouped around the centre. The chief places for these in the 1880s were Jandiala, Ajnala, Narowal, Tarn Taran and Nadiya. Industrial work was begun in 1883 with a class at Amritsar. There was also work amongst the 'deaf and dumb' in India (at Palamcottah from 1900, Mylapore from 1914) and amongst the blind in China at Kucheng, and Nantai, Foochow. Source: Rosemary A. Keen, Catalogue of the papers of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society, 1987.

Work at home focussed on supporting the missionaries and their work overseas: directly, through recruitment, training, on-going support, liaison with mission stations and overseas stakeholders, fundraising and promotional work (exhibitions, deputations, conferences, and publication); indirectly, by working through networks of local Associations, Working Parties, Unions and individual supporters ('friends') in England, Ireland, Wales, Belgium, France, Italy, Australia and Tasmania, New Zealand and Canada. Associations acted as the official representative of the Society at a local level; they fundraised, promoted the work of the Society by disseminating CEZMS literature, organising local conferences, exhibitions and deputation work and kept local members in touch with headquarters. Working Parties made work for sale, organised gifts to be sent out to mission stations etc. By the late 1890s, supporters in Ireland had founded the Hibernian Auxiliary of the CEZMS. The Society's 'Mothers' Own Missionary Scheme', launched in 1900, encouraged members of Mother's Meetings and similar groups to raise funds to support special CEZMS 'Mothers Own Missionaries' who in turn kept in touch with the groups through twice yearly letters circulated as printed leaflets. The Society encouraged support in the form of prayer and a Fellowship of Intercession was established whose members responded to specific requests from missionaries in the Field for 'converts, enquirers and others, in urgent need of prayer' and those with whom they were working. The Daybreak Worker's Union (Girls Guild 1908; Girls Auxiliary 1921) had its own library, stamp fund and a department for copying letters from missionaries; it supported its 'Own Missionary' and published 'Daybreak' (a quarterly periodical for girls) and 'Terminal letter to Girls' (for schools who joined the Union). A junior branch was established under the name 'Torchbearers'. The industrial work of the Society overseas was supported by the Indian Widows' Union 1889-1946/1947. This was an independent group but worked in connection with the CEZMS. It operated through a central committee and local 'bands' of English widows. The aim of the Union was to support Hindu and 'Muhammadan' widows by raising funds to establish industrial schools and support vocational training initiatives, by helping to dispose of work produced through the industrial schools and by pursuing other means of promoting the widows' welfare. The Society's Editorial Department produced a number of printed leaflets and publications to support and promote the activities of its home network, including 'Hints to Helpers' for people wishing to establish or reorganise Working Parties and the quarterly periodical 'Homes of the East' intended for circulation to members of Mothers' Meetings, local Bible classes and similar groups. The first headquarters of the Society was at 38 Tavistock Road, Westbourne Park, London. It served both as office and residential base for missionaries on leave, prospective candidates, deputation workers, members of the annual Spring conference and other visitors. In 1881 the office moved to 9 Salisbury Square, while the Central Home and Depot for work moved in 1883 to 5 Maresfield Gardens, Fitzjohn Avenue, Hampstead. The office subsequently moved to 27 Chancery Lane, 1898-1929; 19 and 21 Southampton Street (renamed Conway Street 1938), 1929-1952, and Cromwell House, Highgate, 1952-57. The Home was at Manor House, 20 Leigh Road, Highbury 1888-1938, The Lodge, Gibson's Hill, Streatham (sold to Croydon corporation) 1938-1951, and Cromwell House, 1952-1957.

CEZMS office organisation was very similar to that of CMS. The Society was run by committees, each Secretary of the main committees being head of a department at Headquarters. The Clerical Secretary served the General and Executive Committees which were responsible overall for Society affairs. He was also in charge of the Editorial Department. The Lay, or Financial, Secretary was responsible for the raising of funds and all financial and property matters. The Foreign and Candidates Secretary corresponded with the missionaries and churches overseas and was responsible for recruiting and training candidates. In 1952 her title was changed to Foreign and Home Secretary and she additionally took responsibility for the House (Home and Depot) Committee (previously served by the Lady Superintendent of the Home) as well as the Home Organisation Committee.

In addition to the main committees in London, the Society maintained contact with its field workers at home and abroad through a network of officers and committees. Mission stations overseas had a local office and an Honorary Corresponding Secretary. Local 'home' based Associations had a Secretary (generally appointed by Headquarters) who served as the main point of contact with London. The Daybreak Workers' Union operated through 'bands' of local workers each with their own Secretary (from 1921 the Union became autonomous and elected its own committee). The Hibernian Auxiliary worked through an all female Committee and a Consultative Council of clergy and laity. Source: printed Annual Reports.

Arrangement: The archives have been listed in five sections or sub-fonds. The first four correspond to the departments of the four Secretaries in charge in 1952 when the Society gave up its separate office and moved its headquarters and home to Cromwell House: the Clerical Secretary's Department (CEZ/G); the Foreign and Candidates Secretary's Department (CEZ/C); the Financial Secretary's Department (CEZ/F); the Home Organisation's Secretary's Department (CEZ/H). The fifth section comprises a small number of records relating to one of the local societies that supported the CEZMS (CEZ/SOC).

588 files, 388 volumes, 997 items, 12 objects

Access: Open, but subject to some access restrictions

Access conditions: Access to parts of the collection is restricted. In accordance with Data Protection regulations, personal files and other records which include personal data are closed for the lifetime of the individual where known, or 100 years, including many of the missionaries blue packets (CEZ/C/AM 5); personnel files (CEZ/C/AM 6) and some of the papers relating to the Society's pension fund (CEZ/F/F 9/4-6). Minutes are closed in line with the CMS 40 year closure period; closure dates are indicated at file level.

Copies: With just a few exceptions (see below), the whole of this collection has been micropublished by Adam Matthew Publications as part of a major project for micropublication of the records of the Church Missionary Society collection. The microfilming was in two parts: in 1997 microfilms of periodicals from the collection were released under the title 'Church Missionary Society Archive: Section II: Missions to Women, Parts 1-3'. In the following year, all of the other records in the collection were micropublished as 'Church Missionary Society

Archive: Section I: East Asia Missions, Parts 4-9'. The Missions to Women microfilm comprises copies of periodicals from Interserve, London as well as those in the Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society held by Cadbury Research Library and includes a more extensive set of 'The Indian Female Evangelist' and successor titles than are held in the CEZMS archive. Copies of the microfilms have been purchased by libraries and other institutions around the world. The full text of the printed guides to the microfilm are available online through the Adam Matthew Publications website at <http://www.ampltd.co.uk/> and paper copies of the guides are also available in Cadbury Research Library. Reference copies of the microfilms are available in Cadbury Research Library in microfilm drawers E2, E3, E4, E5, E7 and E8.

In addition to the microfilm, subscribing institutions give access to high resolution, digital copies of the CEZMS periodicals through the website of Adam Matthew Digital. The periodicals were digitized in 2016 as part of a project to make available online the periodicals in the records of the Church Missionary Society, available online at <http://www.churchmissionarysociety.amdigital.co.uk>. Where digital copies are available this is noted in the catalogue entries in the 'Copies' field, see for example, CEZ/G/EL 1/2.

MATERIAL NOT AVAILABLE ON MICROFILM: artefacts (CEZ/G EL8 and CEZ/H Z3), two fragile guard book volumes (CEZ/G/EA 1/3-4) and ten of the books (CEZ/G/EL 1/6/18; /19; /21; /25; /42; /65; /83; /83a; /89; /99)

Copyright: Permission to make any published use of any material from the collection must be sought in advance in writing from the Director of Special Collections (email: special-collections@bham.ac.uk). Identification of copyright holders of unpublished material is often difficult. Special Collections will assist where possible with identifying copyright owners, but responsibility for ensuring copyright clearance rests with the user of the material.

Language: English

Creator name: Church of England Zenana Missionary Society

Custodial history: The archives of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society passed into the custody of the Church Missionary Society on the amalgamation of the two societies.

Acquisition: These records were deposited by the Church Mission Society in 1987.

Related material: Researchers should also refer to the Church Mission Society (CMS) archives as the two societies worked very closely together, for example, the overseas minutes and periodicals in the records of the CMS Home Division are a useful source of information on CEZMS missionaries (CMS/H/H5). There is a small file of correspondence relating to possible federation of CEZMS with the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission in the records of the General Secretary's Department of the CMS (CMS/G/O 14). Records of local associations and auxiliary societies which were founded to support the work of the CEZMS can also be found in the CMS Unofficial Papers collection, including Birmingham Diocesan Auxiliary minutes 1924-1957 (CMS/ACC304); Southport Association minutes 1896-1958 (CMS/ACC309); Manchester Association financial records 1948-1961 (CMS/ACC342); this collection also incorporates personal papers of some CEZMS missionaries including a photograph album of Miss M. E. Kirby, CEZMS missionary in China, 1898-1906 (CMS/ACC204); photograph albums of unidentified CEZMS missionaries c 1900 (CMS/ACC256); letters and photographs of Miss Emilie Stroelin, CEZMS missionary in Meerut (Mirat), India 1881-1904 (CMS/ACC292) and papers of Miss Kathleen Sophia Loader (1875-1945), CEZMS missionary, Fukien, China 1901-1945 (CMS/ACC341).

Foreign and Candidates Secretary's Department

1872-1960

Primarily comprising incoming and outgoing correspondence with missions, 1901-1956 including the missionaries' Annual Reports and Statistical Returns 1939-1957; papers of individual candidates and missionaries, 1880-1960 including candidates' application papers and a small sequence of personnel files; and minutes of the Candidates Committee, 1882-1957. Also including manuscript registers of missionaries 1872-1957, and a few additional administrative papers relating to annual events, CEZMS regulations and minutes of the Women's Joint Committee of the CMS and CEZMS.

The records of the Foreign and Candidates Secretary's Department, although suffering large gaps, are particularly important as a starting point for information on individual missionaries, their personal reflections, the activities with which they were involved and the circumstances in which they lived and worked.

Administrative history: The Foreign and Candidates Secretary were responsible for corresponding with the missionaries and churches overseas. She also arranged conferences of missionaries on furlough. As Secretary to the Candidates Committee she was responsible for recruitment and training, including the running of the Home Preparation Union whose Secretary was appointed by the Candidates Committee.

Archives as Candidates Secretary:

The Candidates Committee dealt with the appointment and location of missionaries. Applicants were expected to answer a series of questions covering biographical and theological matters. These answers were kept with subsequent correspondence in individual packets. Information on the outside of the packets gives name, home address, age, occupation, date of application, list of referees and medical report. Following her acceptance, the missionary was given her location and signed a form accepting the Society's regulations. There was usually a public meeting to bid farewell to missionaries when leaving Great Britain and at these meetings a Farewell Charge was given, usually in general terms. On arrival overseas a missionary was considered on probation until after she had passed her language exams. The exam results and probation forms commenting on her ability to settle in to her work were signed by the senior missionary or mission secretary.

India:

When CEZMS was established in 1880 it inherited from IFNS ten major mission stations in India, comprising Calcutta (1851), Barrackpore (1871) and Krishnagar (1878) in Bengal, Amritsar (1872) and Batala (1875) in

Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society

Punjab and Sindh, Trivandrum (1862) in Travancore, Palamcottah (1874) in Tinnevely, Jabalpur (1875) in Central Provinces and Masulipatam (1875) and Madras (1876) in South India.

In Bengal CEZMS began in Calcutta (1880-1957), Barrackpore (1880-1948) and Krishnagur (1880-1953). In 1882 the work spread to Bhagalpur (1882-1957) and Burdwan (1882-1913). Other stations included Baranagore (1892-1957), Jamalpur (1894-1948), Mankar (1895-1947) and Ratnapur (1890-1948).

In Punjab and Sindh CEZMS began in Amritsar (1880-1950) and Batala (1880-1931). It spread in the Punjab to Jandiala (1881-1950), Peshawar (1882-1950), Dera Ismail Khan (1884-1940), Narowal (1885-1948), Tarn Taran (1888-1952) and Srinagar (1888-1931). It also worked in Asrapur (1890-1947), Quetta (1895-1943) and Tank (1930-1952). It had three stations in Sindh, Karachi (1880-1957), Hyderabad (1885-1950) and Sukkur (1888-1944).

In Travancore and Cochin the main stations were Trivandrum (1880-1957), Kottayam (1882-1931), Mavelikara (1893-1931) and Olesha (1895-1940) in Travancore and Trichur (1881-1943) and Ernakulam (1902-1937) in Cochin.

In Tinnevely the work spread from Palamcottah (1880-1957) to Sachiapuram (1881-1957) and Nallur (1930-1945).

In Central Provinces there was work at Jabalpur (1880-1957), Penagar (1886-1931) and Katni (1897-1931).

In the Madras area the work spread from Madras (1880-1957) to Chintadrepettah (1888-1950) and Mylapore (1931-1957).

In the Telegu area the main stations were Masulipatam (1880-1954), Bezwada (1881-1945), Ellore (1881-1946), Dummagudem (1885-1939) and Khammamett (1889-1957).

In Mysore there was work at Bangalore (1887-1957) and Channapatna (1906-1950). In the Nilgiriees there was work at Ootacamund and Coonoor (1885-1957).

Ceylon:

CEZMS work in Ceylon began at Kandy (1889-1944).

Records of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society

There was also work at Gampola (1896-1957), Talawa (1911-1957), Mount Lavinia (1912-1943) and Peradeniya (1917-1937).

China:

Work in China was in Fukien and Kwangsi-Hunan. It began in Fukien at Foochow (1884-1950), and spread to Kutien (Kucheng) (1889-1944), Loyuan (Lo-Nguong) (1893-1950), Shanyang (1894-1938), Ciongbau (1897-1915 when school moved to Kienning), Dongkau (1902-1939), Kienning (Kienow 1939) (1902-1944), Sungki (1907-1938), Pucheng (1908-1944). In Kwangsi-Hunan the main stations were Kweilin (1915-1950), Yungchow (1916-1950) and Hengchow (1917-1939).

Japan:

Work began in Japan at Nagasaki (1885-1888). In 1888 it moved to Osaka and then spread to Matsue in 1889. CEZMS decided to withdraw from Japan in 1892 and the work and staff were taken over by CMS.

Malaya:

CEZMS left China 1944-1945 following the Japanese invasion. As with CMS they transferred after the war to Malaya and worked in Penang and Yong Peng (1952-57).

Singapore:

The Female Education Society which had begun work in Singapore in 1836 still had a Chinese Girls' Boarding School when the Society closed in 1900. Responsibility for the school was taken over by CEZMS who continued to run it until 1957 when it was passed on to CMS on the amalgamation of the two societies.

Arrangement: Arranged in two series: /A Administration and /C Committee work.

CEZ/C/AC 3	Missionaries' Annual Report and Statistical Return	c 1939-1957
	Annual Reports 1948-1956, together with a few additional statistical returns, related papers and correspondence; also including files of typescript office copies of the section of the Annual Report and Statistical Return form used to compile the Review of the Year and Story of the Year [the 'Report and General Outline of Work'] 1954-1956. Incomplete sequence: there are no annual reports for the year ending 1948. The reports, many of which are enlivened with anecdotal highlights and personal reflections, are equivalent to the CMS annual letters; they not only give the missionaries' perspective on their work and daily life, but are a useful source of information on the type of work that was being carried out in different mission stations and, in some instances, give eye witness accounts of local and national events. Administrative history: Each missionary was required to provide an annual report describing their work for the year which was signed by the local Corresponding Secretary and returned to the Society's headquarters in the UK; the Society provided a printed form for the purpose, the final page of which was a statistical return sheet completed by the missionary in charge of each station. The statistical return gives general statistics such as names and numbers of staff, numbers of enquirers, baptisms and homes visited, and where relevant, educational returns including the number of pupils at different classes and institutional returns listing the numbers of children, men or women at orphanages, nurseries, industrial homes and institutions for the deaf and blind. Missions with hospitals were also expected to submit medical returns signed by the doctor-in-charge. Information from the forms was extracted for use in the General Review of the Year and Story of the Year. The form was revised c 1955 reflecting the Society's move to Cromwell House and organisation of work by diocese rather than mission.

Arrangement: The Annual Report and Statistical Return forms have been retained in their original order. At the time of cataloguing, the typescript extracts were largely arranged by diocese but with some inconsistencies; the arrangement by diocese has now been applied to each of the typescript extract files.

CEZ/C/AC 3/9/1 Annual Report and Statistical Returns for year ending 1956-1957
December 1956

Including a number of office copy typescript reports for missionaries whose original papers are missing from the file. Notes on the 'Annual Report and Statistical Return' forms suggest that missionaries had been asked to send their report for the General Review of the Year and Story of the Year in advance of the full end of year form; office copies of the former were subsequently filed with the latter and they have been given the same finding number.

CEZ/G	Clerical Secretary's Department Largely comprising committee minutes, 1880-1968 (General Committee, Executive Committee, Publications Committee, Medical Committee, and other committee and sub-committees minutes) and a large series of editorial records, 1872-1960; the latter include a wide range of printed material and publications produced by the CEZMS, as well as correspondence and papers concerning prospective publications by current and former missionaries. Also including staff papers, papers relating to auxiliary organisations and the Society's patrons, a small number of conference papers, and reports, printed material and publications relating to non-	1872-1968

CEZMS organisations.

The sale of publications and dissemination of printed materials advertising and promoting the work of the Society were important means of stimulating and maintaining interest in the Society and thus for fundraising and recruitment. As well as the printed Annual Reports and the Society's official journal, the printed leaflets are a particularly useful source of information on the work of the Society at home and overseas, incorporating considerable detail on the history and activities of the Society and some biographical notes.

Administrative history: The Clerical Secretary was secretary to the General and Executive Committees. He conducted all correspondence concerning policy and principles and amongst his colleagues he was considered 'primus inter pares'. He supervised the Editorial Department and was ultimately responsible for the annual meetings of the Society, including the 'Farewell to Missionaries'. He also arranged the 'Annual Sermon', the general 'Review of the Year' and gave the Farewell Charge to outgoing missionaries. He interviewed all missionaries and headquarters staff.

The General Committee met approximately monthly. It appointed the Executive Committee (18 May 1898) and a number of sub-committees. The Sub-Committee of Selection appointed secretaries and members of other committees; the Medical Committee was concerned with all overseas medical matters, hospitals, staffing, provision of equipment and drugs etc; the Planning Committee was formed to plan an Extension Programme for raising recruits and financial support to enable the Society to meet overseas opportunities; the Emergency Committee operated throughout World War II; the property Sub-Committee was appointed November 1942 to prepare policy relating to property in the field; the Zenana Union Committee organised the annual United Prayer Meeting on behalf of Zenana Missions for the CEZMS, the Female Education Society, the Indian Female Normal School Society, London Missionary Society, Baptist, Wesleyan and Presbbyterian Societies.

Arrangement: Arranged in five series: Administration (A); Committee work (C); Editorial work (E); Conferences, gatherings etc (G) and Outside organisations (O).

Daybreak Workers' Union publications

1889-[mid
20th cent]

Administrative history: The Daybreak Workers' Union [for girls] had begun as the Girls' Union but was founded afresh in January 1888. It changed its name to Girls' Guild in 1908 and Girls' Auxiliary in 1921, when it became autonomous and elected its own committee. The Union worked through local 'Bands', each with their own secretary. From 1904-1921 its reports are entered in the Annual Report of the Society. Its quarterly periodical 'Daybreak' was begun in 1885; issues were incorporated into 'India's Women' from 1888. Schools that joined the Union had their own Terminal Letter to Girls sent to them by the School Secretary.

Honorary Central Secretary: 1904-1908 Miss Graham; 1909-1910 Miss L. Tupp; 1911-1913 Miss M. C. W. Tupp; 1914-1919 Miss E. M. Roberts; 1920-1921 Miss Evelyn M. Sharp.

CEZ/H	Home Organisation Secretary's Department A small sequence of records, mainly comprising minutes of the Home Organisation Committee, 1896-1957, the Home and Depot Committee, 1884-1957, and the Girls Auxiliary, 1931-1952. Also including papers and	1884-1957 correspondence relating to key events in the Society's calendar, papers relating to Cromwell House chapel and a few photographs.

Administrative history: When the Society was founded supporters were appointed for areas throughout the country as Association Secretaries to be responsible for arousing interest in and support for the Society in Great Britain. A Central Association Secretary had her office at headquarters and was in charge of co-ordinating the work of the Association Secretaries. She was Secretary to the Home Organisation Committee (set up in 1896 and called Funds and Home Organisation Committee 1896-1898). Her title was changed to Home Organisation Secretary in 1908, and the Association Secretaries became, less confusingly, Organising Secretaries. They were to represent the Society in their area, to speak on its behalf and to arrange deputation work for returning missionaries and others. There were also Deanery Secretaries. Both these reported to the Home Organisation Secretary. She also kept in touch with the Clerical District Secretaries, clergymen who by sermons were able to gain access to parishes which would not accept a woman speaker.

The Secretary was head of the Home Organisation Department (including the Exhibitions section) and supervised the Girls' Auxiliary. She was also responsible for the management and organisation of the annual and farewell meetings.

Arrangement: Arranged in four series: Administration (A); Committee work (C); Anniversary meetings, jubilee etc (J) and Miscellaneous (Z).
