

GB 6: Bound Volumes

The single most important collection in the country of published works composed by Professor Sir Granville Bantock was donated to the University of Birmingham's Barber Music Library by his son, Raymond Bantock, following the composer's death. It is now housed within the University's Special Collections Department as part of the Bantock Archive. It consists of some four-hundred and seventy individual publications (some of which are duplicated) that were predominantly ordered and bound together in thirty-two volumes during the composer's lifetime. Two further volumes, containing an additional forty works, are no longer extant in the University's holding.

According to the Irving Catalogue (1971), GB 6 "consists almost entirely of large numbers of short printed pieces, bound together in volumes for G.B. It has not been possible to list and index all these items individually. Except in the case of longer works, they have been catalogued according to the titles written on the spines of the volumes." The same information was originally published online by the University at <http://www.a2a.org.uk>.

It is somewhat curious that neither use of, nor reference to, the typescript "Works of Sir Granville Bantock presented to the Music Library, Barber | Institute by Raymond Bantock" was made during the original collation of the Catalogue. This document, now held at GB 5/3/3, not only pre-dates Irving's work, but also provides the vast majority of details for those published compositions that she deemed impossible to list and index.

Equally curious is Irving's assertion that GB 5/3/3 "includes printed and manuscript works." It is patently obvious that no manuscript pieces are actually located amongst the items recorded.

As far as collation of material is concerned throughout the volumes, scores are largely ordered according to classification. No volume is furnished with its own contents page, but brief details of all works are included below in accordance with the numbering system employed for entries in my own Catalogue of Published Works and Manuscript Compositions. The following notes are pertinent to this particular appendix:

Plate No. Given either as it appears on the score, or as the publisher number where applicable [in square brackets.]
