PRELIMINARY CATALOGUE OF THE YMCA ARCHIVE

The collection has been sorted and provisionally organised into a number of sections so as to allow access and retrieval. The numbers assigned to the materials together with the accompanying descriptions, should be regarded as a temporary measure.

This is a preliminary handlist; cataloguing is still in progress and regular additions are still being made to the collection. Last updated 3 September 2019.

SECTION A SERIES OF FOLDERS, MOSTLY COMPRISING PRINTED MATERIALS, C 1880-1920

These folders have been subdivided and listed as follows:

1-130 folders relating to local associations and of district unions arranged geographically by YMCA divisions/units

131-136 folders of other printed literature of YMCA and associated organisations

137-143 folders of manuscript and printed material relating to the early history of the YMCA

144-147 folders of printed and other material relating to conferences

148-152 folders of minutes of the National Council of the YMCA

153-163, 167 folders of reports of travelling secretaries to the National Council of the YMCA

164 folders of papers relating to the National Council of YMCAs (Wales)

Folders relating to local associations and of district unions, arranged geographically by YMCA divisions/units

These folders were compiled and organised by the National Council and this original arrangement has been kept. The materials in these folders include printed annual reports, programmes and prospectuses, newscuttings, some correspondence (including letters relating to the formation of local branches and associations) and other manuscript material (including a small number of photographs).

It appears that these folders were compiled, or maintained in this way, up to the early 1920s. No material after c 1922 has been found in any of the folders. Little material prior to 1880 seems to have been preserved in these folders, although other early reports of some local associations and branches can be found in Section B. More recent printed literature of local associations and districts/regions can be located in Section C; and minutes and other records of a handful of associations and districts can also be found in Section D.

It has not been possible to list the contents of these folders in any detail: at present, the listing only gives details of the local associations for which material has been preserved.

Migration Department Executive Committee

At the end of this volume is a statement by the Chairman of the Committee about the history and development of the Migration Department, together with details of its origins in the International Hospitality League and the Red Triangle Hospitality League. The Red Triangle Hospitality League was disbanded in 1921 and its work was split between the YMCA Metropolitan area and the newly created Migration Department. The work of the Migration Department was mainly in the area of overseas settlement. In 1932, migration to Canada ceased and the Department turned its activities back to this country and introduced the British Boys for British Farms scheme.

The Migration Department was largely self financing and, to a great extent, was separate from the National Council

Red Triangle Hospitality League

Originated in 1917 to meet the needs of the thousands of service men coming to the United Kingdom on leave. Representatives of the National Councils of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and America, united with the English and Scottish National Councils to form the International Hospitality League. A Council of Representatives, consisting of Chief Executive Officers representing each of the National Councils, was set up and to which the Executive Committee of the League reported.

At the end of the war, the English National Council agreed to take over the administration of the League. It agreed to develop its activities under its new name - the Red Hospitality League – from October 1919. The last meeting of the Executive Committee of the League was held in July 1921 and its work was absorbed by the Executive Committee of the YMCA’s Migration Department.

SECTION K  FIRST WORLD WAR GREEN BOOKS

These comprise different series of records:

- Incomplete series of numbered binders containing photographs illustrating the war emergency work of the YMCA

- Incomplete series of numbered binders containing printed reports, pamphlets, and other printed literature, cuttings from magazines and newspapers, some manuscript correspondence, notes etc and other materials relating to YMCA war work

- Incomplete series of numbered binders relating to YMCA Military Camp Work, containing correspondence, printed material, photographs

- Incomplete series of numbered binders containing photographs taken in France on official visits by Sir Arthur K Yapp

- Sequences of compilation volumes of typescript records relating to the YMCA’s war work

- Publications of the war period

- Subject folders

- Miscellaneous photographs

The National Council of YMCAs created a sequence of records known as the 'First World War Green Books' which were compiled retrospectively to illustrate its activities and work principally during the First World War. It appears that these records were so-called because of the green coloured binders and/or the green coloured paper into which the various materials were bound and mounted. Many of these sequences of records were listed, numbered and captioned by the YMCA, evidence of the importance the association attached to documenting its war work. Some of the records - particularly the photographs - were reproduced in the YMCA's magazines for publicity and fund raising purposes.

The majority of the First World War Green Books relate to the YMCA's war emergency work, both at home and in the war zones, principally in Europe but also in Africa, India and elsewhere and they provide very valuable evidence of the YMCA's role as the largest civilian welfare organisation to work with the British army during the First World War. There are some records relating to the YMCA's work with the army in its military camps from the early 20th century and to other spheres of its work such as assistance with emigration and the unemployed which span more than the war period. There are also some records relating to YMCA's involvement in the immediate post war reconstruction including albums of Sir Arthur Yapp's visits as the YMCA's General Secretary to France & Flanders in the three years following the Armistice.

These Green Books include a wide range of materials including photographs, copies of YMCA publications and publicity materials, copies and transcripts of reports and extracts of correspondence of YMCA workers, typescript transcripts of records relating to YMCA war workers and its centres and huts and other papers.
They are an immensely valuable record of the YMCA's wide ranging activities including the provision of rest huts, overnight hostels and other facilities for men on leave, the association's kitchens and canteens in its centres at home and at the front, the organisation of entertainments and recreational facilities and of educational and employment opportunities both for troops and for munition workers, as well as its religious work. They also provide evidence of the association's work with prisoners of war, its work with the wounded and with families of the troops and the role of women in its work at home and at the front under the aegis of the Ladies' Auxiliary Committee (subsequently the National Women's Auxiliary) under the presidency of Princess Helena Victoria.

Arranged into the following sub-series, largely based on the YMCA's own organisation of these records:

YMCA/K/1: Photographs illustrating war emergency work of the YMCA
YMCA/K/2: Printed reports, pamphlets and other printed literature, etc relating to YMCA war work

YMCA/K/1: Photographs illustrating the war emergency work of the YMCA

This sequence comprises a large collection of photographs which record and illustrate the YMCA's wide-ranging war emergency work at home and overseas. In addition to original photographs, the material also includes postcards, maps and some printed illustrations used in publications.

These photographs illustrate, for example, the provision of the YMCA huts which were erected in cities, villages and railway stations and in the major training camps in England and also with the British Expeditionary Force at the great bases at Le Havre, Rouen, Calais, Boulogne, Etaples and Abbeville, and subsequently at the frontline. They include numerous images of exteriors and interiors of these huts, many of them featuring the facilities and activities provided by the YMCA and incorporating both troops and YMCA workers in the images. The facilities and activities shown in the photographs range from the provision of comforts such as canteens and refreshment centres, of forms of recreational and entertainment such as concerts, libraries, gramophones and games, and of sporting activities such as boxing and football matches and competitions and tug of war events. Cinemas were also established in large huts in military training camps and at the overseas bases and these are also pictured.

Other aspects of the YMCA's work at home which are illustrated include the provision of overnight hostels in London and a motor transport service for men on leave; the establishment of employment bureaux to assist discharged soldiers and sailors to find suitable employment; and the association's pioneering work in providing training schemes for disabled service men which gave a lead to the public authorities. Its overseas work represented in these volumes include its work with prisoners of war, the hostels at hospital bases which provided accommodation and comfort for relatives visiting wounded soldiers.

The crucial role of women in the YMCA's war work, particularly in the association's kitchens and canteens in its centres at home and at the front, is very apparent in these photographs.

As well as recording the YMCA's work, these volumes also include photographs more broadly of the war including views of the war zones of war damage to towns, buildings and countryside, and of other general views and scenes of people, places, buildings and countryside unconnected with the First World War.

Each book was numbered by the YMCA and it is clear from this numbering that at least two of the original green books have been lost including one which would have contained photographs relating to its work in France and in particular at the bases in Abbeville, Boulogne and Calais. Some individual photographs have also been removed by YMCA staff over the years before the collection was deposited - presumably for publicity purposes - and were not replaced and are now missing.

A contemporary manuscript contents list can be found at the front of each volume which provides page number, a geographical location (eg country and place) or subject, a brief description and the YMCA's own photograph numbers (which are noted on or by the photographs). The numbers assigned by the YMCA to the books has been retained as the title for each volume but the YMCA's numbering of individual photographs has not been used in this catalogue because of duplication of numbers. The photographs in each volume have simply been given a running number in the order they appear (except in instances where there are two copies of each photograph which have been given the same number).

The majority of the photographs have been individually captioned by the YMCA and these captions have been incorporated into the title field in the catalogue and presented in inverted commas. Occasionally there is no caption but where this can be inferred from information in the contents listings or from a similar image, this has been added in square brackets. Postcards often incorporate a caption in the image and this has been used as the caption for cataloguing purposes. The caption given in the title field is always prefixed by the type of image such as photograph, postcard, printed photograph (a term which has been used to encompass all printed illustrations from publications), followed by the geographical or subject divisions used by the YMCA in the contents listings, as appropriate.

Each binder includes a detailed contents list and photocopies of these contents lists are available in the supplementary volume to this binder. All images within sections YMCA/K/1 have been scanned and are available to view on the archive online catalogue: www.calmview.bham.ac.uk
